RGA, the global life reinsurer, is pleased to announce the appointment of Ken Hogg to the position of Chief Actuary and Financial Officer for their UK operations, with effect from 1 June 2011.

Ken joins from the Financial Services Authority where he led the FSA's work on insurance sector issues and represented the FSA in its dealings with external stakeholders including trade associations, professional bodies and international regulators. During his career in the life insurance industry Ken has held a wide range of financial reporting, strategy and business development roles with companies such as AEGON, AIG Life and MGM Advantage.

The life insurance market is evolving rapidly due to Solvency 2, the Retail Distribution Review, the changing welfare state, the change in tax regime and the introduction of gender-neutral pricing. Ken's attributes will help both us and our clients make the most of the opportunities these changes will bring, with the ultimate aim of helping households and businesses having in place adequate protection against life changing events".

Ken Hogg said, "I am looking forward to returning to the industry and helping RGA and their clients manage their way through the challenges ahead. Personally, I am looking forward to working with the dynamic RGA team, both in the UK and globally".
